Advocacy for Rookies
a training for new domestic violence advocates

Tuesday - Thursday
August 10 - 12, 2010

Hal Holmes Center
209 North Ruby Street
Ellensburg, WA

Domestic violence advocacy is unlike any other kind of work. It is incredibly meaningful, important, life-changing work; yet you won't find it on a list of professional occupations.

So, what does it mean to be a domestic violence advocate? And, how do you actually do this work?

We are excited to present this great training for new advocates - both paid and volunteer - who work in shelters, on crisis lines, in community-based advocacy programs and in systems-based programs (courts, police, welfare).

We'll spend three days together immersed in key advocacy concepts, such as:

- ⇒ Advocacy-based counseling & safety planning with survivors,
- ⇒ Advocacy, negotiation & collaboration with others on behalf of survivors, and
- ⇒ Handling the practical & challenging aspects of this work.

Cost: Member Programs - 1 FREE
$50 for each additional advocate
$50 for each associate member
$125 for non-members

Registration is limited to 45 participants, with priority given to participants from WSCADV Member Programs and DSHS-funded victim services programs.

Contact: Leigh Hofheimer, (206) 389-2515, Ext. 202 (v), (206) 389-2900 (TTY) or leigh@wscadv.org.

Hotel: You are responsible for making your own hotel reservations and paying for the room.

The Comfort Inn, in Ellensburg, WA, (509) 925-7037, will charge you a special rate of $70 for single or double occupancy. You must make your reservation by July 23, 2010 and let them know you are with the Washington State Coalition Against Domestic Violence.
